COMMERCIAL PROPOSAL

findworka
Great tech for ambitious people.

QUALITY ASSURANCE

Findworka offers customized quality assurance services to bring perfection to all our projects.

Automated testing is performed by means of a program without human intervention. Our QA experts develop scripts that accelerate the process of testing, increase efficiency, and issue notifications in case of errors.

Functional testing is used for checking whether the product meets the desired specifications and functional requirements stated in the development documentation. This will prove if the product aligns with your business idea and works as you had imagined it.

Stress testing helps to determine the ability of the program or website to remain stable under stressful conditions, e.g., simultaneous uploads, high traffic volume, and peak usage.

Usability testing involves actual users testing the product. It provides important feedback about how well people can use the product or the system. This is critical in winning client's approval and acceptance.

Compatibility testing is used to check the consistency of tested products with certain hardware and software, operating systems and/or network environments.

User interface testing is performed to ensure that the interface meets requirements of the users and other elements of the tested product. Its aim is to make the product intuitively clear for users by means of various signs, prompts and explanatory messages that help to work with the system.

Unit testing is based on local testing of specific components of the source code. It's a way to ensure their correct behavior before the system integration.

Our experts do their best to make your projects operate flawlessly. We will ensure the final product according to your requirements and specifications.

At findworka we pay a lot of attention to the skills and mindset of our specialists. All of them are familiar and follow our Code of Ethics.
